Leadership

Program Length: 1-hour presentation followed by an optional half-day or full-day workshop

Program Description

Having been in leadership positions throughout high school, college and professional athletics (a captain at each level), as well as leading many service organizations outside of athletics, Keith has lived the experiences he talks about.

This presentation focuses on the true concept of leadership. CREATING power vs. ACQUIRING power.

Keith takes participants through a variety of leadership exercises based on real-life situations.

By going through the process of making leadership decisions and acting on these decisions, participants learn the art of leadership, i.e. how to create power in the people around them.

Keith also touches on the many facets of leadership including; creating excitement, goal setting, group performance, confronting inappropriate behavior and more.

Leaders leave this presentation confident of their ability to move their group forward, and better able to fulfill the expectations others have for them as leaders. They'll also leave with a mission in their heart.

Business Ethics

Program Length: 1-hour presentation or half-day workshop

Program Description

Corporate ethics is simply personal ethics played out on a larger stage. One of the decisions that define our lives is whether we do the right thing when the right thing costs us. Whether it costs us money, influence, friends, or prestige. This is a decision we make daily, hourly, sometimes minute by minute.

Keith's presentation will allow people to see the humor, and sometimes-serious consequences of our daily choices. The audience will leave feeling challenged to examine their personal choices, and inspired to influence others to do the "right thing" even when the cost seems high.

Personal Excellence

Program Length: 1-hour presentation; optional workshop available

Program Description

In today's business environment how is excellence defined? By quotas met? Goals achieved? By feeling (or reaching) a balance between family life and work? Keith's presentation will challenge people to take a fresh look at how they define excellence. With a new definition in hand, Keith empowers people to take action, a skill that separates competitors in today's marketplace.
